A forgotten timber recovered...

The Matai Bay Collection from Sorenmobler uses unique native Matai timber reclaimed from the high, arid North Island plateau. These logs have lain untouched under the canopy of plantation grown Douglas Fir for more than 50 years. Discarded as worthless once the native forest had been milled for its Rimu, they were pushed aside to allow the planting of Douglas Fir. The dry, cold climate didn't favour the growth of these trees and they have long since been harvested. Vast tracts of this country are now undergoing the transformation into Dairy pasture and the Matai logs are being discovered, recovered, milled and transformed into the stunning Matai Bay Collection. A truly remarkable timber preserved in a most remarkable manner.

Matai Bay 2 Drawer Bedsider and Queen Bedstead

MATAI TIMBER Matai is a native to New Zealand and has been the flooring timber of choice for over 100 years. Together with other Podocarps such as Rimu and Totara it forms the upper story of tall forest trees reaching heights of 25 mtrs. It is a hard, durable and dimensionally stable timber, which has enabled it to endure the harsh climate of NZ central North Island plateau for over 50 years. Sorenmobler are crafting the natural feature grade of Matai into the stunning Matai Bay Collection.
